"FALL PLANTING DAY"

MOVEMENT BEGUN TO HAVE ENTIRE COUNTY TAKE PART IN GENERAL PLAN

In Los Angeles, November 27, will be observed as a special time to plant flower gardens for next year, when the Southland will be the Mecca for hordes of sightseers from all parts of the country.

The beautifying Los Angeles city committee of the general committee on beautifying and entertaining conceived the idea and it has met with general favor.

It has been suggested and urged warmly that all municipalities in the county join with Los Angeles in having a wholesale planting. The date of November 27 was selected because school children will have a holiday on that date and will be enabled to work in both home and school gardens.

Lists of the best flowers to be planted and directions for their care will be announced later.

SAYS GERMANY NOT DISTURBED BY THE WAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Optimistic reports of conditions in Germany were voiced here today by Walter Schultz, Panama-Pacific exposition commissioner to Germany, who recently returned from Berlin. Factories, he said, were running, and the nation's general business was good.

"The German empire," Schultz said, "intends to participate in the San Francisco exposition and will show the world that the war will not force her from the position she holds in regard to trade and commerce. Germans generally expect the war to continue until next spring, but say they do not expect to encounter any difficulties in shipping exhibits to America.

"There are 70,000,000 people in Germany. Possibly 5,000,000 are fighting. That leaves 65,000,000 to conduct the empire's business. Factories along the frontier are closed, of course, but the rest are running, except those manufacturing articles such as luxuries.

"Mobilization was conducted in such a manner that enough men were left to keep the factories in operation. The German market is being kept open for American trade. The empire feels most friendly toward America and wants to make her trade relations even closer."

Schultz said German business men welcome competition, and probably would favor the campaign to mark goods "made in U. S. A." Many of the Berlin shops, he said, were displaying cards in their windows reading: "This is an American house. Patronize American goods; the Americans are friendly to us."

THRIFT—SAVING

(Contributed by Bank of Glendale. Extract from reliable reports received by them on general conditions.)

If our people realized the part that money will play in the years following the war, everyone would now save every dollar he could to invest later on in the development and increase of business, which is sure to come. Our country should follow the example of Germany in the past twenty years in the co-operative encouragement of all forms of industry, large and small, under constructive government help and regulation; and we should follow the example of all European countries in the careful saving and investment of small sums by the great majority of the individuals of the nation. In Europe the number out of every thousand of population who have bank accounts is in the various countries as follows: Switzerland, 554; France, 346; Germany, 317; England, 302; Italy, 220. In contrast to these figures, the United States, 99.

EAGLE ROCK SCHOOL

A special election will be held by the city of Eagle Rock on Nov. 13 to vote bonds in the amount of $60,000 for purchasing a site and for erecting and equipping a new school building. Architect H. Alban Reeves, Chamber of commerce building, prepared preliminary plans for an eight-room fireproof building.—Southwest Contractor.

REMEMBER P. T. A. BENEFIT

The Parent-Teacher association of the Columbus avenue school will give a three-performance picture show at the Majestic theater Friday, Nov. 6th. Pictures shown promptly at 3:30 in the afternoon and at 7 and 8:30 in the evening. Six excellent features. The funds will go toward the installation of electric lighting so badly needed in the school building.

LATE WAR ZONE NEWS

OFFICIAL REPORTS SIGNIFY LITTLE CHANGE IN THE BATTLE LINES

AMSTERDAM (via London), Nov. 3, 7:45 p. m.—The following official dispatch issued in Berlin has been received here:

"A telegram from general headquarters, dated November 3, at noon, states that inundations south of Nieuport prevent all operations in this part of the country.

"The water in places is as high as a man. Our troops have evacuated the inundated districts without loss of men, horses or guns.

"Our attacks on Ypres are progressing. More than 2300 men, mostly English, have been captured, and also several machine guns.

"West of Roye severe fighting has taken place with great losses on both sides, but the situation is unchanged. In the village fight we lost several hundred in missing and two cannon. Our attacks on the Aisne east of Soissons are successful, despite obstinate resistance. Our troops have occupied several strongly fortified positions beyond Chavonne and Soupir, capturing more than a thousand French, three cannon and four machine guns.

"Near the cathedral in Soissons the French have posted a heavy battery and made the steeple an observation post.

"Between Verdun and Toul several French attacks have been repulsed. Troops of French soldiers wore German overcoats and helmets.

"In the Vosges, near Markinch, a French attack was repulsed and our troops began a counter attack.

"In the east the operations are still in a state of evolution and there has been no fighting.

"The Russian first Siberian army corps on November 1 used civilians as breastworks while destroying a bridge."

LONDON, Nov. 3, 10:45 p. m.—That the German army has abandoned its attempt to hack its way along the Belgian coast to Calais is agreed upon by all the officials tonight.

A combination of inundated country, the remnant of the Belgian army under King Albert and the activity of the British warships, seemingly all contributed toward ending the costly struggle.

A Berlin official report attributes the failure of the Germans entirely to the flooded state of the country, where the water in places is over a man's head; but it declares that the army of Emperor William withdrew in good order and without losses.

After nearly three weeks of desperate fighting the brunt of the attack has now shifted to the Ypres region, where the English army of Field Marshal Sir John French, reinforced by Indians and Territorials, apparently must meet another onslaught. To the scene of this contemplated battle, according to reports, Emperor William has gone to give encouragement to his men by his presence.

A state of war exists between Turkey on the one side and Russia, Great Britain and Servia on the other, yet the Ottoman government appears as a house divided against itself, one section seemingly being desirous of war, while the conservatives are trying to smooth over the situation arising from the attacks upon Russian ports and ships by Turkish war vessels directed by German officers.

Russia apparently has welcomed the war and will not give the Turks a chance to draw back, while the British cruiser Minerva has smashed the Turkish base of operations against Egypt at the head of the Gulf of Akabahr. The Turkish ambassador in London has as yet made no arrangements to leave, and the embassy still maintains a conciliatory attitude.

Closing of the North sea to all shipping except that which places itself under the protection of the British fleet, is recognized as the first stroke of Admiral Baron Fisher, the new first sea lord of the admiralty, and also one of the most important events of the war. All cargoes destined for German or Austrian consumption must now run the gauntlet of British protection in the English channel, the Strait of Gibraltar or the Suez canal.

The making of the North sea a military area already has brought adverse comments from Germany. The Cologne Gazette claims that Great Britain virtually has proclaimed a blockade of the North sea, which its fleet will be unable to enforce. The newspapers of Holland also raise objections to the restrictions placed on navigation in the sea.

French Official Report

PARIS, Nov. 3, 11:09 p. m.—The following official communication was issued tonight:

LUMBER COMPANIES MUST MOVE SAYS BOARD

BOARD WILL WORK WITH COMMITTEE IN ENDEAVOR TO SOLVE INDUSTRIAL DISTRICT PROBLEM — WILL PURCHASE FORD CAR FOR PUBLIC SERVICE DEPARTMENT — WILL ASK COUNTY FOR TEMPORARY STORM WATER PROTECTION

The board of trustees of the city of Glendale met at 7:30 p. m. Monday at the city hall. Trustees Grist, Lane, Tower and Williams were present. Trustee Thompson, being on a business trip in the East, was absent.

The minutes of the last regular meeting and also the adjourned meeting of Oct. 29th, were read and approved.

A petition signed by O. S. Palmer for the opening of Seventh street from its easterly end in Tract No. 1164, known as the Childs tract, easterly to Adams street, was read and on motion referred to the city engineer.

An application was received for a permit to sell milk from Mr. R. H. Whitton. The same was referred to the milk inspector.

Reports from the month of October were received from the following city officials and placed on file:

The clerk read a petition signed by A. L. Treat and others, requesting that certain territory in the petition set forth be included in that portion of Glendale within which lumber yards and other industrial establishments may not locate; the intention being to limit the district for such establishments to the grounds now occupied by the Litchfield Lumber company and the Fox-Woodsum Lumber company and the Glendale Mill company.

On motion, "an ordinance prohibiting the erection and construction of certain buildings and structures in said city, and prohibiting the carrying on of certain businesses, trades and callings in fire districts Nos. 1 and 3 and in certain portions of fire district No. 2, etc.," were taken up for the first reading.

On motion this ordinance was declared read for the first time and was taken up for the second reading.

Mr. Byram, one of the petitioners, interposed a remark to the effect that the people who had presented the petition were willing that the lumber yards now located within the district in question be allowed to remain, at least for the present, but the protest was against any more industries locating there.

Mr. Maxwell was of the opinion that while the people owning property in close proximity to these lumber mills feel that it would be a hardship to drive them out of their present location, it would be an injustice to the property owners to have additional factories brought in, as such institutions attract a poor class of residents.

Mr. J. F. Lilly said he was opposed to the so-called industrial district where it now is, not as one who might in any sense be interested personally one way or another, but as a citizen who would like to see this portion of Glendale improved as one of the finest sections suited for good residences. He thought, moreover, that if we allow another lumber yard to locate there, we would be only temporizing, while we ought to take steps to find a location for all of them, where they would be certain of staying and where we might have room for industries to come in even if the population of the city of Glendale should rise to from 15,000 to 20,000. He felt that if we pass an ordinance such as had just been read, forcing all these industries within the district described, we would be bound morally, if not legally, to allow them to stay; that it would be best to leave the situation as it is at present; meantime trying to find a permanent site for them; and he suggested the extreme west side as a likely location by reasons of switching facilities on the S. P. R. R.

Messrs. Elias Ayers, E. U. Emery, Frank Zerr, Harry Chase, C. D. Thom, Anderson and others expressed like sentiments; while Mr. Hall and Mr. McClure maintained the position that action had been delayed sufficiently long to justify demand for immediate relief.

Mr. O. A. Lane, chairman of the board, briefly reviewed the circumstances surrounding this agitation from its inception to date, explaining why it had been impossible for the board to do anything more than what has been done. He said he was in hearty sympathy with those who had been severe sufferers from the annoyances of the lumber business on Broadway and Maryland avenue (mentioning particularly Mr. Hall) and realized that an industrial district in the central part of Glendale was out of the question. But he thought that the proper place could be found in time. He urged the people to consider the problem calmly and with due consideration for the concerns affected. In his opinion it would be for some of the civic bodies to take up the question rather than the board of trustees, though the board would be ready to take it up if the people so desired.

Mr. Emery suggested that the board appoint a committee composed of residents from the different parts of the city and in conjunction with the chairman of the board and the city manager try to solve the problem and report from time to time as their work progresses.

On motion of Trustee Tower, ordered that we give notice to all the lumber companies in Glendale that they are expected to move into the industrial district, when established, not later than eighteen months from this time, and that the city clerk be instructed to request the chamber of commerce, the chairman of the Protective association, the Glendale Merchants' association and the lumber companies and residents in the present districts affected, each to appoint a member of the committee to be formed to try and secure an industrial district, said committee to work in conjunction with the city manager.

On motion of Trustee Williams, ordered that this ordinance, read for the first time, be laid on the table indefinitely, by the following vote:

Ayes—Grist, Lane, Tower, Williams.

Absent—Thompson.

On motion the bids for an automobile for the city were ordered opened, examined and publicly declared.

Bids as follows were opened, examined and referred to the manager of the public service department:

Studebaker	$1075.00
Buick, C-24	1010.00
Buick, 30	585.00
Overland	910.00
Metz	530.00
Ford	519.50

On motion of Trustee Tower, ordered that when we adjourn we adjourn to meet Wednesday, Nov. 4th, at 7:15 p. m.

The city manager suggested that the city engineer might now be instructed to prepare proceedings for the opening and widening of Broadway from Everett street to the easterly city limits.

On motion of Trustee Grist the city engineer was instructed to prepare the proceedings according to the city manager's recommendation.

The city manager asked that the drinking fountain at the Sixth street school be put in proper repair. So ordered.

On motion of Trustee Tower, ordered that the bid of Harry E. Hall for a Ford motor car, at the price of $519.50 be accepted, his being the lowest bid, and that all other bids be rejected.

The city attorney called the attention of the board to the promise made by the county board of supervisors to appropriate a certain sum for the purpose of temporary protection of Glendale against storm water damage during the coming season. He thought it might be well for the trustees to settle upon an approximate sum needed and ask the county for it.

On motion of Trustee Tower, ordered that the city manager and the city engineer take up the matter with the board of supervisors.

The manager of the public service department reported that it was no longer necessary to maintain the position of clerk in the lighting department, as that department has now merged into that of "public service," referring to Miss M. A. Cross, and that she may now be placed on the payroll of that department.

On motion, ordered that the position of clerk in the lighting department be abolished.

Certain demands were referred to the finance committee.

Demands previously referred to the finance committee were reported favorably by said committee and warrants were ordered drawn in payment of the same.

LEAVES KALEM COMPANY

This is George H. Melford's last week with the Kalem company in Glendale, as he has been engaged as director of one of the four companies now at work upon big productions in the Laskey studio. Mr. Melford is well known in "filmdom" and has turned out some very fine pictures under the Kalem banner.

TUESDAY'S ELECTION

PRESENT METHOD OF COUNTING NOT UP TO TWENTIETH CENTURY STANDARDS

Although the returns of Tuesday's election are slow in coming in, it is a settled fact that Johnson and Eshleman have been elected governor and lieutenant-governor of the state of California. As to who have been successful for the various other offices will not be definitely known until the official count has been completed.

The Los Angeles city papers of this morning conceded the election of Woolwine for district attorney.

With the general ballot, the present mode of counting the votes is very deficient. The judges and clerks of the election who went on duty at 6 o'clock Tuesday morning should not be required to remain after the closing of the polls at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening, especially when it is very evident that the count cannot be completed until 48 hours after the closing of the polls.

The law should provide that a new set of election officials should go on duty immediately after the closing of the polls. It should also provide that if the ballot is a cumbersome one, as is the instance at this election, a sufficient number of clerks should be provided to complete the count in a reasonable length of time.

The Glendale Evening News has no fault to find with the 1914 ballot, but on the contrary is ready to commend it as being a ballot giving the voters the rare privilege of expressing their individual desires. The slow counting process is no fault in the preparation of the ballot, but in the lack of providing a sufficient number of election clerks.

It has been necessary for the people of the state to change the mode of doing things in the past fifty years, and why is it not in place to change for the appointment of judges and clerks of elections? In the doing of any work, the object is to have it done well and expeditiously. There are instances in which clerks of elections in this state are spending from 48 to 60 hours consecutively counting votes. This plan is not practicable nor is it humane, and should be abolished at the first opportunity.

ELECTION RETURNS

The election returns for the Glendale precincts will be published in the Glendale Evening News as soon as the count has been completed, but up to the present writing the count has not been completed. It is embarrassing to announce the probable election of a candidate, and later find it necessary to reverse the announcement.

ARE CLEANING VERDUGO WASH

The management of the Glendale & Montrose road has grown weary waiting for developments in the Verdugo wash matter and not being desirous of having a recurrence of last winter's damage, when a long stretch of track was washed out and a large amount of roadbed destroyed, they have taken matters into their own hands, not being advocates of the watchful waiting policy.

Accordingly, Manager J. W. M. Burton has put a large force of men and teams at work on the wash south of the Mesnager bridge and they are cleaning out the debris from the wash in an endeavor to prevent so much destruction, should last winter's floods be repeated.

The federal reserve banking system is being instituted in this country at a particularly opportune time. It should serve to stabilize financial conditions all over the country and afford ample volume of currency to meet all needs, at all times, and yet not lead to unhealthy inflation.

SURPRISE MRS. UPSON

MEMBERS OF UNITY CLUB HELP FORMER IOWAN CELEBRATE HER 88TH BIRTHDAY

Members of the Unity club of Marshalltown, Iowa, and a few others, met Nov. 3 at the Beverly apartments in Los Angeles to surprise Mrs. J. T. Upson, mother of Mrs. Minnie A. Rhoades, and do honor to her on her 88th birthday. The ladies brought a delicious luncheon and there was a birthday cake with candles. After the eating of the luncheon Mrs. A. M. Parker, while reading the following poem, presented to Mrs. Upson thirty carnations of the color for each period of her life.

Those present were Mrs. J. T. Upson, Mrs. Minnie A. Rhoades, Mrs. H. A. Church, Mrs. Ida Rhoades, Mrs. J. F. Atkinson, Mrs. Lizzie Carmean, Mrs. Lawrence Parker, Mrs. Florence Wells, Mrs. Kaufman, of Los Angeles, and Mrs. A. M. Parker, Mrs. George Marsh, of Glendale; Mrs. A. E. Wilbur of San Gabriel, Mrs. H. M. Stone, Mrs. H. C. Hubbard of Pasadena, and Mrs. C. A. Billings of Arcadia.

We have come, today, to honor a friend,
An old friend, tried and true;
Whose long, long life had ever the trend
Toward the good, and the beautiful, too.

And what shall we bring to our friend today
We will bring sweet blossoms and
To show that we love her well?
they shall say
The thoughts with which our hearts swell.

First, here's a nosegay of sweetest pink hue,
Which speaks of youth, so fair;
Of laughter, and love, and a lover, true;
The shade that she used to wear.

Like womanhood's full rich years;
When husband and babies gladdened her sight,
And life too happy for fears.

The years of age and peace;
When there's only the turning of one last page,
And all of life's troubles will cease.

FREEZE REFLECTED IN LAWSUIT

The freeze of 1912 and the consequent demoralization of the orange market, reflected in a suit tried recently in Judge Shenk's court and submitted on points of law.

The Randolph Fruit company sued B. C. Stratton to recover $671.87 expended for washing and packing oranges. Mr. Stratton contended the packing house did not handle the fruit as an exchange, but that its agent, Robert H. Henderson, manager of the packing house, had contracted to pay $1 a box for navel oranges and $1.50 a box for Valencias. The proceeds of sales, he said, did not equal those prices. He sued on a cross complaint to recover $1132.50, which represented the difference between the price he received and what he alleged he should have been paid, and also claims for delayed shipments shortly after the heavy freeze in January of last year. —Pacific Fruit World.

AGRARIAN NEEDS OF UNITED STATES

At a time when the farmers of the United States are relatively more prosperous than most of their fellow countrymen they may not be eager to listen to the advice of David Lubin as to how by organization they may better their methods of distributing and marketing crops and check the steady increase of tenantry status among them. Nevertheless heed given to the words of this founder of the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, and permanent delegate of the United States to that institution, might be prudent. It is true that he is "a prophet not without honor save in his own country." It is true that he finds it difficult to induce lawmakers and department officials at Washington to rate him at the value which is put on him by sovereigns, cabinet ministers and publicists abroad. The Wrights were treated much the same way, as have been many other pioneers.

The unwisdom of thus dealing with a thinker of Mr. Lubin's type is due to the habit he has of marshalling facts and arguments that are hard to meet and rebut, and the patience and tenacity with which he works on, indifferent to contemporary judgment. Having provided the world with an international agency for gathering reliable statistics about its staple food products, and having more recently shown the intimate relation between arbitrarily imposed rates of ocean transport for these staples and their cost to consumers, Mr. Lubin comes back to his native land to urge producers of grains and fruits to federate their many quite impotent because separated farmers' organizations and form a farmers' marketing council like unto Germany's Landwirtschaftsrat.

It is to check the rise of a tenant agricultural class, not only in Texas, but in the upper Mississippi valley, and to enable the process of distribution of farm products to be controlled by producers that Mr. Lubin urges the class movement. Of course he must realize that the consumer would still have to be reckoned with; that the United States has not found by experience that legislation protective of "classes" works equitably; and that an administration is now in power that stands for "regulated competition" as between classes as well as between individuals or corporations. On the other hand it is true that there is intense popular interest now in experimenting with any plan that will reduce cost of living and the toll of extravagant methods of distribution.

AFTER BELGIAN FARMERS

The plan which California is working out to try and secure as colonists some of the Belgians who have been rendered homeless by the war is arousing several of the eastern states to action along the same line. Practically all of the papers in that section which we have seen regard the plan as a good one and urge its adoption at home. The Philadelphia Inquirer recently gave it the following endorsement:

"California wants the expatriated Belgians. A committee, made up of planters, viticulturists, financiers and statesmen, is raising money and hopes to induce many of them to settle on California soil. The proposition is to allot a large amount of land in small sections, but several times as large as the Belgians have cultivated at home, to supply them with seed, food and homes so that they may begin early next spring to raise crops.

"This is a sound proposition. It contemplates getting to California the most intensive agriculturists in the world. It will not be an easy step, but there is no reason why it should not measurably succeed if there is displayed sufficient intelligence and enough money is raised.

"Of all other classes of the population we now have a surfeit, but we never can have too many cultivators of the soil. And the Europeans know much more about farming than we do in this country."—Pasadena News.

JUSTICE AND THE JURISTS

If justice were partial and not universal in its scope it would be easier to look complacently on some of the efforts made by jurists to block the way of liberty and equality. However, the world moves, public opinion subdues resistance and obstacles slide out of the way. Thus the request of women for admission to the American Bar Association has at last been referred to a committee to report with recommendations next year. The ultimate outcome, we believe, is as certain as tomorrow's advent. The only disputable point is, When? Persons whom universities and law schools train, whom state examiners admit as fit to practice law, and whom highest state and federal courts have coming before them as aids in establishing justice, cannot, as we see it, logically be debarred from bar associations, and are not in some states where political and civic equality obtains as between men and women. If law or its practice were a matter of masculinity or femininity the distinction might be successfully maintained, but neither lawmakers nor the courts argue this. How can the men lawyers continue so to do, save on the grounds of aversion to women as women.

Emergence of this issue just at the present hour is significant for it falls in with a broader movement for humanizing a great arm of government and a great profession. The demand is finding champions today in quarters that were conservative at the dawn of the new century. Prophets of the desired changes are to be found now among former presidents of the nation, on the bench itself, and among younger teachers in the law schools, as well as among lawyers who are free from influences of business. If this is deemed a too roseate hued claim, let the speeches made before the American Bar Association at its recent meeting be reckoned with as substantiating evidence. Critics within and without the circle of jurists, who deal fairly today with problems of judiciary reform, get a hearing and concrete results that are proof of the coming of a new day, less legalistic in method and less individualistic in aim. There is to be more concern about getting justice done promptly and at less cost to litigants. Judges are to be freer to use expert advisers for counselors when issues before the court touch on matters demanding special knowledge not given in schools of law or in legal practice. Judgments are to be less inflexible and sentences are to vary according to prisoners' past records and future needs. The punitive element is to wane; there is to be encouragement for the constructive and reconstructive ideal. Client, lawyer, Judge and jury are to get closer to the truth. And in quest of such an ideal of course such lesser strifes as woman's fitness or unfitness for recognition as a lawyer will fade away. Portia has only to keep on insisting. Where courts include, bar associations also must in time.

OTTMAR MERGENTHALER DIED RICH

In a contribution on inventors and their protection appearing in the New York Times, Ottmar Mergenthaler, the inventor of the linotype, is given as an example of one who did not adequately benefit by his invention, and the writer concludes his illustration by saying, "Mergenthaler himself died a poor man." Fred J. Warburton, treasurer of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company, who is familiar with the history of the linotype, corrects this misapprehension, stating that he has even read that Mr. Mergenthaler "died in the poorhouse."

The facts, however, are these: Ottmar Mergenthaler was a mechanic, earning $3.50 a day in an instrument maker's shop in Baltimore, when he was engaged, on the recommendation of his employer, by a number of Washington reporters, to work upon a printing machine which had been invented by Charles H. Moore. His compensation was very considerably increased under his new engagement, and he was, of course, supplied with the necessary tools and material. He worked under this arrangement for about two years, and although he improved the machine, it never became a commercial success. The money expended (which was a very large sum for those who employed him) resulted in the education of Mr. Mergenthaler in the printing art, and he finally brought forth a machine which was the forerunner of the present linotype. It was, however, far from what the newspaper publisher demanded before he could afford to dispense with foundry-made type. By the time that was brought about, several million dollars had been expended. And it is fair to say here, without any desire to depreciate Mr. Mergenthaler's great genius, that the result as shown today is due in considerable measure to other inventors.

Mr. Mergenthaler died a rich man. He had received not only his royalties but the company had given him profitable contracts for the building of machines in his own shop; he had considerable stock interest reserved for him, upon which he drew the same dividends paid to other stockholders, and at his death the company bought from his estate, at their full value, the tools and material applicable to linotype building, besides paying a large sum for a logotype machine which he had left unfinished. Since his decease the average of royalties continued to be paid to his family has been considerably more than $50,000 a year.

It is not good policy to wait for the good things to come to us. Better go out and look for them.

A NEW CITY AND BUSINESS DIRECTORY FOR GLENDALE, TROPICO AND CASA VERDUGO

A new city and business directory for 1915 is one of the things necessary to aid the three cities of Glendale, Tropico and Casa Verdugo to take advantage of all the good things that are coming this way in the big Panama Exposition year.

The present directory is a year and a half old and with our large increase in population and many new changes in both, it is distinctly out of date.

Realizing this fact, the Valley Publicity Bureau has commenced work on a new Directory to be issued Jan. 1, 1915. Mr. F. Wilkinson, Manager of the Bureau is now working on the business section, after which the city enumeration will be taken up. He asks the aid of every booster of the three cities in making the coming issue, the most complete and valuable edition yet published. 67t3

Mrs. Aspinwall's husband came near being the 22nd victim of the Los Angeles Times holocaust, as he left the building but a few moments previously.

Because of extreme drouth, the fire risks on the national forests in the Northwest have been greater this season than in any other since 1910, the worst year since the forests were created. Much less damage was done this year because experience in fire fighting was gained in the fires of 1910.

OUR FLAG

An unusual opportunity presents itself in the large cities of England, France, Germany and Austria-Hungary for the sale of miniature American flags in the form of stick pins, silk or cotton bunting, etc. American citizens who are congregated in the large cities awaiting an opportunity to reach home are often mistaken for subjects of the various nations now at war, and many of them are anxiously seeking some form of external evidence of their American citizenship.

Were the Titanic disaster to be duplicated now, the world would not be horrified to the extent it was when the ill-fated vessel went down in a time of profound peace throughout the major part of the world. The world is so benumbed at this time by the awful tragedy of war, other tragedies pale into insignificance in comparison.

California citizens have the name of taking advantage of the strangers who come here with money. Whatever truth there is in this statement it remains a fact that a large percent of people doing business in California came here strangers not many years ago. If strangers are fleeced, they in turn soon learn to do the new stranger.

In another column will be found an advertisement for a lady to do bookkeeping work, stenographic work and news writing in the office of the Glendale Evening News. The position is a permanent one to the person who is able to do the work. Only competent applicants of some experience need apply.

The German emperor, who is personally directing his armies, is now able to reach the battle front in almost any direction.—Seattle Post Intelligencer.

FILIPINOS AS SILK PRODUCERS

Six years of experimenting by officials and expert investigators seem to indicate that ere long Filipinos not only will cease importing silk from China for home use, but will be fairly entered on the way of competing in the world's open market as a grower of worms and cocoons. The natives of the island have aptitudes that fit them for supervision of the task with its many details calling for patience and tenacity of purpose as well as manual skill. Those in the governmental schools who have been given a technical knowledge of the problem of silkworm growing to add to their native skill, are now fitted to go forth as teachers of the people; and they will be supported in all ways by the insular officials, on grounds of thrift and also of good will. The insular treasury will welcome a thriving export trade in silk.

That the food of the silkworms can be grown and will thrive in the islands is beyond peradventure, according to latest official reports. Given then a right environment, a fine labor supply and intelligent cooperation by the trained naturalists in government employ at Manila, and it would seem as if a few years hence the United States might be growing within its own domain some of that raw material which it now uses in such a lavish way in its mills for the making of fine fabrics. At any rate this is clear, that the insular officials and experts are not omitting any steps necessary to test on an ample scale the possibility of bringing the Philippines into line with China and Japan as a source of raw silk supply. Success will alter somewhat present currents of trade.

Albania has been under six regimes recently. Regimes seem to change over there as often as the styles in women's headgear.

The old slogan, "Carry the war into Africa," has been revived and is doing service in this twentieth century.

The king of England has given permission to have a part of the royal estate placed at the disposal of the school of forestry at Cambridge University for purposes of experiment and demonstration.

William Penn, in his Charter of Rights, provided that for every five acres of forest cleared one acre should be left in woods. Foresters today maintain that on an average one-fifth of every farm should be in timber.

Recent experiments indicate that round timbers of all the pines, of Engelmann spruce, Douglas fir, tamarack and western larch, can be readily treated with preservatives, but that the firs, hemlocks, redwood and Sitka spruce, in the round, do not take treatment easily. This information should be of value to persons who contemplate preservative treatment of round posts, poles or mine props.

RAISIN SAUCE

Recipes for raisin sauces, under that name, are rare, but there are chutney sauces which contain raisins, and raisins are used in the New Zealand curries with lemon instead of sour apple or tamarind. In the book of "101 Sauces" there is the following chutney sauce:

"Remove the seeds from one-half cup of raisins and one green pepper; add three green tomatoes, two small onions, and chop all fine. Put one pint of vinegar with one cup of brown sugar and one tablespoon of mustard seed, and put on to boil; add the chopped mixture and one teaspoonful of salt and let simmer one hour. Tnen add six green sour apples, pared and cut small. Cook slowly until soft and keep in a well-corked bottle. Used with boiled meats or stews."

PROPER CARE OF KITCHEN UTENSILS

Some persons seem to think this is a matter that deserves but little thought, but as the food we eat is prepared in these pans and kettles, it seems there is scarcely anything in the house that deserves more consideration.

The first provision to make toward the proper care of kitchen utensils is to provide correct cleaning materials. A good scouring powder, a bath brick, soap powder and a strong white soap of good make should be chosen. If these are bought in quantity, there will be quite a saving in their cost, and they do not deteriorate by being kept. The soap, on the contrary, improves as it ages. There should be separate towels for the kitchen ware. The towels that are fine enough to give satisfactory luster to glass and china are too fine for metal. Soft papers are used in some homes for the preliminary cleaning of pans and iron ware that have held fats and greasy foods and there are many uses to which paper is well adapted.

TURKEY NOW IN STRUGGLE

"The only advices received this evening concerning the region at the northeast of Vailly, where we have counter-attacked and retaken the farm of Metz in the region of the Four-de-Paris-Stain Hubert and the Argonne, where a German attack has been repulsed and we have gained some ground."

The French official announcement given out this afternoon says that the Germans would appear to have completely abandoned the left bank of the Yser below Dixmude and that troops of the allies have reoccupied points on the river without great difficulty.

Belgian Official Report

HAVRE (France), Nov. 3 (via Paris, 5:05 p. m.)—An official communication given out by the Belgian general staff and dated November 2, 9:15 p. m., says:

"The enemy has fallen back towards the east, abandoning his dead and wounded.

"A German officer confesses that their army lost 30,000 men, of whom 10,000 were killed.

"Our troops have delivered attacks between Dixmude and Noordschoote.

"After violent fighting between Zoonebeke and the Lys, the allies maintained their positions except in the environs of Messines, and at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon successfully resumed the offensive."

REDUCING THE ILLITERACY RATE

Under the lead of its governor the state of Kentucky is entering upon a campaign to put an end to both juvenile and adult illiteracy. The 1910 national census showed a rate of 12.1 per cent, including persons 10 or more years old. The national rate, at the same time and on the same basis, was 7.7 per cent. Compared with Oregon's rate of 1.1 per cent and Louisiana's rate of 29 per cent, Kentucky's rate was middling. Lower than that of the south Atlantic, east south central and west south central groups of states, it was considerably higher than the rates of the New England, middle Atlantic, west north central, mountain and Pacific groups.

To account for the measure of illiteracy in a state so long settled and so centrally situated an analyst has to reckon with survivals of the institution of slavery, with the physical and social isolation of its mountaineers and their descendants, and with the long domination of the state by a landed aristocracy not over friendly to popular enlightenment, so that strong native champions of common school education have not been numerous. But of late years changes of a political and economic sort have stirred the state. Commerce and manufacturing have flourished as well as agriculture. Educated, practical men have been needed as subordinates in large enterprises. There have been new visions for the people. A leaven of modernity has been working, and out of the ferment has come this demand for reduction and abolition of illiteracy, to be compassed by education, publicly supported on an unprecedented scale for Kentucky.

The human material to be dealt with in this case to a large extent is of the original Anglo-Celtic stock which settled the state in its romantic, pioneer days. Such migrations as have come to it of late years have originated in the north central group of states, and not across seas. This simplifies the problem of which the state is about to essay a settlement. It seems a far less complicated one than New York state is summoned to meet by its state superintendent of education in a recent address, or that Massachusetts faces as the result of incoming immigrants whose European origins and environments have not been such as to make them literate. A state school system for a comparatively homogeneous population, subject to similar cultural influences other than the formally pedagogical, is quite a different institution to organize and administer from one that must be built up where Aryan and Semite, Teuton, Celt, Latin and Slav make up the juvenile and adult student body. To cope with the problem as it affects the alien child is not so difficult. New York state, for instance, during the ten years 1900-1910 reduced its child illiteracy many degrees. But so vast was the flood of adult alien illiterates during the same period that the illiteracy average of the state for the total population was not lessened at all.

To meet this new phase of the national educational and immigration problems some of the best thinkers of the country are now volunteering. Fortunately agencies set in operation long ago are now steadily reducing the rate of illiteracy among the negroes. Time was when New England was inclined to mind Alabama's business for her and show her how to educate the negro. The day has come when Massachusetts and Connecticut must look out for their own white adults' reading and writing ability.
